Michigan State University
Professors of Jazz

8:00 P.M.
February 15, 2013
College of Music
Byron and Dee Cook Recital Hall
Program

Giant Steps ................................................................. John Coltrane
Fee-Fi-Fo-Fum.............................................................. Wayne Shorter
What Is This Thing Called Love?........................................ Cole Porter
Triste................................................................. Antonio Carlos Jobim
You Don’t What Love Is....... Donald MacRae Wilhoite, Jr/Gene Vincent DePaul
Fried Bananas.............................................................. Dexter Gordon
Byrd Like.............................................................. Freddie Hubbard

---

Michigan State University Professors of Jazz

- Etienne Charles – Trumpet
- Michael Dease – Trombone
- Randy Gelispie – Drums
- Diego Rivera – Tenor/Soprano Saxophone
- Reginald Thomas – Piano
- Rodney Whitaker – Bass

The MSU Professors of Jazz is a jazz group established and maintained through the Jazz Studies area at Michigan State University. They are professional jazz musicians and members of the Jazz Studies faculty at MSU. The hard-swinging group performs music from the Jazz Canon, including Duke Ellington, Miles Davis, Thelonious Monk, and original compositions. Members have performed at national and international festivals, venues and clubs, and continue to perform locally to support Michigan jazz presenters and educators.

The MSU Professors of Jazz offer concerts for young people, master class concerts with continuing outreach and recruitment workshops, master classes, and lecture demonstrations. The group accepts performance opportunities at jazz festivals, jazz concert series, and programs that help to enhance jazz awareness.